Understanding variable annuities — the condensed version.

Before we discuss Monument Advisor's investment options, let's go over some important points about variable annuities.

Variable annuities are long-term, tax-deferred investments you buy from an insurance company to help you save for retirement. They are called "variable" because their value fluctuates based on the performance of the underlying investment options you and your advisor pick.

They allow you to create a stream of income, available for a specified amount of time or for life, accessed either through systematic withdrawal³, annuitization (at no extra cost) or the purchase of an optional rider. When discussing variable annuities, it's important to note that they have limitations and aren't right for all investors. If you decide to take your money out early:

- If you're not yet 59½, you may have to pay an additional 10% early withdrawal federal tax penalty on top of ordinary income taxes

- If a death benefit is available, the amount of your death benefit and the contract value will be reduced

Any guarantees are based on the policy terms and conditions and are subject to the claims-paying ability of the issuing insurance company. These guarantees don't apply to the performance of the underlying investment options, which are subject to investment risk, including possible loss of the money you've invested. The investment options in a variable annuity are underlying subaccounts and cannot be purchased directly by the public. They are only available through variable annuity policies issued by life insurance companies.

² Monument Advisor has a $20 monthly flat insurance fee. Additional low-cost fund platform fees ranging from .10% - .35% will be assessed for investors wishing to purchase shares of low-cost funds. See the prospectus for details.

³ The IRS may charge a 10% tax penalty on any withdrawal made before age 59½.

Fund category definitions

Government Money Market Funds:

Funds are not insured or guaranteed by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation or any other government agency. The funds are open to all investors and although they seek to preserve the value of the investment at $1.00 per share, they cannot guarantee they will do so. You could lose money by investing in a fund. A fund may impose a fee upon sale of shares or temporarily suspend the ability to sell shares if the fund's liquidity falls below required minimums because of market conditions or other factors. The fund's sponsor has no legal obligation to provide financial support to the fund, and you should not expect that the sponsor will provide financial support to the fund at any time.

International/emerging market funds:

Funds that invest internationally involve risks not associated with investing solely in the United States, such as currency fluctuation, political risk, differences in accounting and the limited availability of information.

Small/mid-cap funds:

Funds investing in stocks of small-cap, mid-cap or emerging companies may have less liquidity than those investing in larger, established companies and may be subject to greater price volatility and risk than the overall stock market.

High-yield funds:

Funds that invest in high-yield securities are subject to greater credit risk, liquidity risk, and price fluctuations than funds that invest in higher-quality securities. The prices of high-yield bonds tend to be more sensitive to adverse economic and business conditions than are higher-rated corporate bonds. Increased volatility may reduce the market value of high-yield bonds. They are also subject to the claims-paying ability of the issuing company.

Government funds:

While the funds invest primarily in the securities of the U.S. government and its agencies, the values are not guaranteed by these entities.

Real estate funds:

Funds that focus on real estate investing are sensitive to economic and business cycles, changing demographic patterns and government actions.

Fund-of-funds:

These funds are designed to provide diversification and asset allocation across several types of investments and asset classes, primarily by investing in underlying funds. Therefore, in addition to the expenses of the portfolio, you are indirectly paying a proportionate share of the applicable fees and expenses of the underlying funds.

Bond funds:

These funds have the same interest rate, inflation and credit risks associated with the underlying bonds owned by the fund. Interest rate risk is the possibility of a change in the value of a bond due to changing interest rates. Inflation risk arises from the decline in value of cash flows due to loss of purchasing power. Credit risk is the potential loss on an investment based on the bond issuer's failure to repay on the amount borrowed.

Managed volatility funds:

These funds are designed to offer traditional long-term investment allocations blended with a strategy that seeks to mitigate risk and manage portfolio volatility. These funds may not be successful in reducing volatility, and it is possible that the funds' volatility management strategies could result in losses greater than if the funds did not use such strategies.

Asset allocation funds:

These funds may invest across multiple asset classes including, but not limited to, domestic and foreign stocks, bonds, and cash. The use of diversification and asset allocation as a part of an overall investment strategy does not assure a profit or protect against loss in declining market.

Commodities/natural resource funds: Specific uncertainties associated with commodities and natural resources investing include changes in supply-and-demand relationships due to environmental, economic and political factors, which may cause increased volatility and decreased liquidity.

Defined outcome buffered funds: These funds seek to produce predetermined investment outcomes based upon the performance of an underlying index up to a preset cap, while buffering investors against a portion of the index's losses over a specific period of time. There is no guarantee that these funds will achieve their investment objective and their performance may be different than the underlying index. The investment outcomes being sought are based upon a specific period, approximately 12 months, so investors not in the fund for the entire period may not realize the full potential benefit of the fund.
